Lafond, Jean François de.
A new system of music, both theorical and practical, and yet not mathematical: written in a manner intirely new; that's to say, in a style plane and intelligible; and calculated to render the art more charming, the teaching not only less tedious, but more profitable, and the learning easier by three quarters ... By John Francis de la Fond ... London, Printed for the author, 1725.

4 p. l., lxxxiii, 180, [6] p. 20cm.

Following the text proper are the words "The end of the first volum," according to Eitner, there is no record of a 2d volume having appeared.
The author proposes a system of musical notation in which the tones and semitones of the octave are designated by the numbers 1-12, the clef is dispensed with and the bass and treble staves are united.
